

'Missionary' Kipling Family Group

Five families in the 1911 UK census belonged to this group, named after John Thomas Kipling, a London City Missionary. They were headed by John himself (202) and by four of his sons, Wilfred (204), John George (201), Ernest (200) and James John (241).

John Thomas was living with wife Rebecca, daughter Emily and youngest son Horace (#202).

HOUNSLOW.

A WORKMEN'S SOCIAL GATHERING.

On Wednesday evening the men engaged on the drainage works in course of construction here were entertained to a substantial supper at the Assembly-rooms, by the inhabitants. The affair was originated by several members of the Wesleyan community, under the Rev. B. Scott. It received the warmest support and co-operation from the local ministers of the various denominations, and from most of the prominent inhabitants of the town.

Mr. Kipling, Missionary to Navvies and Public works, in connection with the London City Mission, also spoke. He explained what was being done throughout the country for men engaged on public works; he however, particularised the Mission in the Metropolis, where himself and Mr. Gardner were specially engaged in visiting the navvies at the various works, at the hospitals, and at their homes.

George described himself as a widower. He also named his father incorrectly as John Kipling, mason. This was actually his grandfather, his father Thomas being a shoemaker.

George may first have married an Ann Butcher in 1831, which may explain why he only formally married Mary Ann Ford in 1865.

A member of the 'Missionary' family group took a y-DNA test and is haplogroup I-M253, with a good match to the 'Cragg' Kipling family group and to two Americans named Bailey. A John Kipling was born in Bowes in 1744, the son of Thomas Kipling. Thomas was the "supposed son of Charles Bailey and Dorothy Kipling". This John was the mason of Bishop Thornton. One of John's brothers, James, started the 'Cragg' Kipling family group (q.v.).

The US Baileys' ancestors hail from New York State, one from a small town called Fishkill where Baileys have lived since the mid-eighteenth century following the arrival of a Nicholas Bailey from England a hundred years before that. I cannot place Nicholas Bailey, putative founder of the American branch, in Bowes, although Charles Bailey's ancestors had lived there since at least 1605 (the name was sometimes written 'Bailife', the 'f' possibly being a poorly transcribed long 's').

An illustration of how the importer pays the duty was given by Mr. J. G. Kipling, who is assisting Sir John Benn in his London campaign. Mr. Kipling, who is a London merchant doing big business with Japan, said the purchasers there, in view of the tariff which would come in force in September next, had ordered four times their usual quantity of goods, on the strict injunction that they must be shipped by April, so as to reach Japan before the new duties came into operation.

"If the foreigner pays the duty," asks Mr. Kipling, "why should these Japanese merchants be in such haste to get these goods into Japan? The reason, of course, is that they know the duty will have to be paid in Japan."

Western Times - Tuesday 29 November 1910

SIR JOHN BENN IN CLAPHAM.
 The middle-class suburban constituency of Clapham has long been considered a safe Tory stronghold, but last time their majority was under 2,000, and in Sir John Benn, the fighting Progressive leader of the London County Council, the Liberals of the neighbourhood have a candidate whose views are definite and strongly stated. He has the active support of Mr. J. G. Kipling, who put up such a fine fight at the beginning of the year, and enthusiasm on the Liberal side is running high.

THRILLS AT KINGSWOOD.

Mr. E. Gale, J.P., Chairman of the Banstead Urban District Council, and the Mayor of Sutton and Cheam (Alderman J. G. Kipling) were among the large crowd at Sir Alan Cobham's "Air Circus" at Rookery Farm, Lower Kingswood, on Thursday last, They had a flight over Redhill and thoroughly enjoyed the experience.

Surrey Mirror - Friday 05 July 1935

DRAINAGE AGREEMENT. — Sutton and Cheam Council may seek special legislation to amend a 21-years-old agreement under which they treat sewage from the Banstead, Tadworth and Walton areas of the urban district because they claim that Banstead Council pays them scarcely more than half the actual cost. The Finance Committee has reported to Sutton and Cheam Council that negotiations between the two Councils have reached a deadlock, and that they have instructed the Town Clerk to consult Parliamentary Agents about drafting legislation for securing adequate payment by Banstead Council. Alderman J. G. Kipling, of Sutton and Cheam Council, says that they have been subsidising Banstead's ratepayers at the rate of nearly 10s. per house at a total cost to date of £20,000.

DEATH OF THE FIRST MAYOR

SUTTON and Cheam's first mayor, Mr. John George Kipling, died at his home at Worcester-road, Sutton, at the week-end. He was 87.

Mr. Kipling was made a Freeman of the borough in 1952 after more than 50 years' public service.

He became a Justice of the Peace in 1910 and was first elected to the old Urban District Council in 1928. He was elected alderman in 1934, the same year in which he became the borough's first mayor.

He has served on almost all the council's committees and was chairman of the Civil Defence Committee during the war. He retired from the council in 1952.

Mr. Kipling was mainly responsible, together with Mr. Spencer Gibson, for the acquisition of Rose Hill as an open space for the borough, and he took a prominent part in the acquisition of Cheam Park and Nonsuch Park.

He was Master of the Worshipful Company of Masons in 1938, and was connected by profession with the import and export trade.

During his business career, Mr. Kipling was associated with the import and export trade and was known affectionately amongst his colleagues as "Honest John."

Mr. Kipling was a keen member of the local bowling club and great supporter of Sutton cricket club. He was vice-president of Sutton Amateur Dramatic Club and a prominent Freemason.

THE FUNERAL SERVICE

The funeral service, attended by many civic representatives and friends at Christ Church, Sutton, on Wednesday morning, was conducted by the vicar, the Rev. Frank S. Lewis, followed by cremation at the South London Crematorium.

Chief mourners were: Miss Emily Kipling, sister; Messrs. Wilfred and Horace Kipling, brothers; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Kipling, son and daughter-in-law; Mr. Reginald Kipling, son; Mr. E. D. Metcalfe, son-in-law.
