

Staindrop 1911

One of the larger Kipling family groups is the descendants of Lionel Kipling, woolcomber of Staindrop, many of whom are now in the USA. See also Staindrop 1911 (Sunderland), Staindrop 1911 (Bolam), Staindrop 1911 (Bradford) and Fishmonger 1911. Most 1911 census entries are in those other notes.

Lionel may have been born in Startforth in 1730, the son of John Kipling, yeoman.¹

Lionel married Elizabeth Camron at Staindrop in 1747.

Their children included Mary (1749), Joseph (1750; d.?), Lionel (1751), Ann (1754), Joseph (1756), Joshua (1758), Jacob (1760; d1764), Dorothy (1761) and Nathan (1762). Elizabeth died giving birth to Nathan. In 1772, Lionel remarried, to Jane Greenwell at Staindrop, a few weeks before a son, Jacob, was born. He was given the name of his late step-brother.

30 Sep 1772 Lionel Kipling (weaver, widower), age 36, of Staindrop obtained a licence to marry Jane Greenwell, age 30, of Staindrop, directed to Staindrop

Surety: John Shaw, comber, of Staindrop

[Note: married 1 Oct at Staindrop.]

¹ Some have considered, based on his amended age at death (97, changed from 79, see later), that Lionel might have been born in Staindrop in 1717, in a short gap in the parish registers. In which case, it has been suggested that he could be the son of Charles Kipling and Elizabeth Bell who married there in 1717. Charles was originally from Middleton in Teesdale, where his ancestors included several Lionels. However, he was a prosperous merchant, so unlikely to have had a woolcombing son, and in any case left only four daughters as co-heirs on his death in 1721.

18 Oct 1772 Jacob Kipling of Staindrop, son of Lionel & Jane Kipling

Lionel's age is given as 36, implying that he was born in 1735/6. This accords with an age at death of 79 in 1814, see below, but is inconsistent with a first marriage in 1747. It appears that he may have subtracted some years from his age by 1772, although not as many as was later added on in the burial register

Their other children were Robert (1774)....

...and Ann (1776).

Either Lionel (aged around 50) or his son, aged around 30, served in the Durham militia between 1780 and 1782.

RATCLIFF.—Duke of Wellington, Brook-street, Samuel Mills to William Thompson Kipling.

Morning Advertiser - Tuesday 18 November 1851

NEW COURT.—Thursday, January 6th, 1853.

PRESENT—SIR WILLIAM MAGNAY, Bart., Ald.; Mr. Ald. FARNCOMB;
Mr. RECORDER; Mr. Ald. LAWRENCE; and Mr. Ald. WIRE.

Before Mr. Recorder and the Sixth Jury.

198. JOHN WHITE, robbery with violence, with two other men unknown, on William Thompson Kipling, and stealing 1 half crown, and 5 halfpence, his property.

MR. THOMPSON conducted the Prosecution.

WILLIAM THOMPSON KIPLING. I have been a publican, but am out of business. On 14th Dec. I lived at the Three Cups, in Lower Shadwell—on that night I was in Sutton-street, St. George's in the East, on my way home, nearly opposite the George—I had for some time felt indisposed, and at that time I felt very sick—I sat down on the step of a doorway—I observed two men coming towards me, arm in arm, and a third man was following me—I had not been sitting half a minute before they got to me—I had scarcely sat down—the two men put their arms through mine, pinioning my arms back—they put their arms under mine, and lifted me up with their arms, and pinioned my arms back—they raised me up on my feet—one man was on each side of me—they said, "Here is a man drunk and ill—let us take him home"—I was perfectly sober—I said, "Hold hard, let me alone"—and then the third person put his arm round my neck, and gagged me back—he did not come in front of me, he was behind—he put his arm round my neck and got hold of his hand with his other hand, and pulled me back, rendering me almost insensible—I can identify the prisoner as the man who had hold of my left arm—he robbed my left-hand pocket, and the other robbed my right hand pocket—the prisoner put his hand into my left hand waistcoat pocket, where I had a half crown—I had seen it about half an hour previous to that time—the man on my right side put his hand into my other pocket—the prisoner then let go my arm and struck me a violent blow in my stomach with his fist, and at the same moment I fell down—I had five halfpence in my right hand pocket—they then ran off—the man that had had me round the neck, ran down Sutton-street—I ran after the prisoner, who ran towards the Commercial-road—I never lost sight of him—I missed the half crown and the five halfpence—the policeman stopped the prisoner, and I came up—I never was five yards behind him.

Cross-examined by MR. TORR. Q. Where had you been that night?
A. To Hoxton—this occurred in Sutton-street, near the George—that was my nearest way home from Hoxton—I had felt ill for about a week before—I had had bread and cheese for supper at my friend's at Hoxton, and a glass of porter, and after supper a small glass of brandy and water; only once filled—I was sober when I left my friend's house—I took nothing on my way—I do not know whether it is usual for a man who is ill to sit down on a door step, and not call a cab, perhaps you would have done so—when these men came to me I had not my head bent down, it was resting on my hand—before the men came close to me, I had observed that there were two men coming towards me, and one person following me—I had not seen them before I sat down on the step—I raised my head up in haste when these men came towards me—I had not some impression that they were acting as friends, I was rather suspicious—the place where I was sitting is lighted as the ordinary streets are lighted—the prisoner was on my left side, and I had a half crown piece in that pocket—after they had rifled my pockets, they all ran away—I had not seen the policeman before they commenced running.

COURT. Q. Where did you see these two persons coming from? A. Up Sutton-street, towards me—I saw them coming before I sat down—they met me—I was going down Sutton-street—the one who held me round the neck ran down Sutton-street—the prisoner ran up Sutton-street—the other man ran in the same direction, and then turned back—one man was following me—the other two met me.

WILLIAM FREDERICK KELL (policeman, K 358). On the night of 14th Dec. I was on duty in the Commercial-road East, just opposite Sutton-street—between 11 and 12 o'clock I saw three men in Sutton-street, walking together up towards the Commercial-road—I then saw the prosecutor sitting down on a step in Sutton-street—I saw two of the men go to him—the prisoner took his left arm, the other man took his right arm, and the third man went and put his arm round his neck, and drew him back—I saw the two that raised the gentleman off the step, fumbling at his waistcoat—they both did that, the man that had his left arm and the other—I ran down and directly two of them ran down Sutton-street, and the prisoner ran towards the Commercial-road—I took him directly in the Commercial-road—I pursued him nine or ten yards—I did not lose sight of him—I said to him, "What have you been up to?"—he said, "Nothing"—I said, "You must consider you are in my custody"—I held him till the prosecutor came up—he was a few yards away—when he came up he could hardly speak—he told me he had been robbed and gagged by the throat—he said he would give the prisoner into custody—the prisoner did not say anything then—at the station he said he was innocent—I found on him a sixpence, four halfpence in copper, and a book.

Cross-examined. Q. It was at the upper end of Sutton-street, near the Commercial-road, where the prosecutor was sitting? A. Yes, the three men were all coming up Sutton-street—they appeared to me to be all of one company—I was ten or twelve yards distance—the prosecutor was struggling with them.

COURT. Q. When you saw the men going up Sutton-street, was one behind the other two? A. Yes.

WORSHIP-STREET.
THE BILLETING SYSTEM.—On Tuesday, Mr. William Kipling, landlord of the Weavers' Arms, Crown-street, Finsbury, was summoned before Mr. D'Eyncourt, for having neglected to provide sufficient and suitable accommodation to three militiamen, who had been billeted at his house.—The defendant assured the magistrate that the charge was entirely destitute of foundation; and had doubtless originated in his positive refusal to accede to a proposal on the part of the militiamen, that he would supply them with money to enable them to provide themselves elsewhere. From the moment they entered his house their entire conduct and demeanour had been most offensive to his customers, and they had addressed his wife in grossly insulting language on different occasions.—Lance-Corporal Giber, of the London Militia, was then called, and said he had been quartered for some weeks in the rooms subsequently occupied by the men who preferred the present complaint, and which he only vacated the day before their arrival, and that the comfort and cleanliness of the place were strictly attended to during that period.—A respectable tradesman in the neighbourhood, who had examined the rooms on the day after the men had left, gave similar evidence, and said that they were furnished with good feather beds, which he should not himself object to occupy.—The defendant here intimated that he had written to Captain Hill, to request the attendance of two other corporals of the regiment, who would be able to depose to the same facts, but that neither of them were forthcoming.—Mr. D'Eyncourt said that as conclusive evidence had been brought forward with regard to the imperfect accommodation which had been afforded to the men who had been last billeted at the house, while the witnesses for the defence merely deposed to the condition of the place before and after that period, he felt it his duty to convict the defendant, and should order him to pay a penalty of 20s. and costs.

LIONEL THOMAS KIPLING, 104, Ingrave Street, Battersea, potman.
 About 11.20 on August 29 I was going along Wye Street. That leads into Lithgow Street, where I saw two men I knew. They were singing. One was Rainsford and the other was Davis. Two constables approached them. One said something to the two men and pushed Rainsford with his hand. Rainsford fell to the ground. Almost immediately Daniels rushed from a house; he struck Police-constable Barber. Barber went to close with Daniels as if to arrest him. Peters then rushed from the opposite direction and struck Barber several blows from the back. I do not know Peters. I know Daniels by sight. Peters came from Thibet Street. Daniels came from the house opposite Thibet Street. Barber was struck three or four times; he fell to the ground. I never saw Hadrill after he went down the court in the first instance.

Cross-examined by Mr. Macdonald. I did not see Rainsford strike Barber. I did not see Rainsford at all. If he had been there I must have seen him. In the first instance only two persons were present, myself and an old man, when Daniels and Peters assaulted the policeman. The policeman did not fall on top of Rainsford. Rainsford was taken away. I do not think Hadrill went away. I think he went after somebody else, not Rainsford. In 30 or 40 seconds there were between 30 and 40 people there. I went away to fetch assistance.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bircham. It is a roughish neighbourhood. I am positive nothing was going on before I was there. Barber and Rainsford did not fall over together. There was no crowd when Peters rushed out. I did not see Mrs. Hurst, Mr. Hurst, or Mrs. Ward. Barber was 25 to 30 paces from Wye Street when he was knocked down, as near as possible the centre of Lithgow Street.

Cross-examined by Daniels. You came out in your shirt sleeves. As far as I recollect, your feet were covered; I could not say whether it was boots or socks.

D2. David (1793)

In March 1814, Pvt. David Kipling of the 70th Regiment of Foot is recorded as being posted from barracks in Perth, Scotland, to Tilbury Fort. The history of the regiment tells that it spent 1813 suppressing riots in Montrose and guarding prisoners of war at Perth. It was sent to reinforce the garrison in Canada during the Anglo-American War of 1812-1815 and remained there until 1827.

³ HMS Netley was a 16-gun ship launched as Prince Regent in 1812 for the Provincial Marine on Lake Ontario. She was converted into a schooner in 1813 and renamed Beresford (or General Beresford). She was re-rigged as a brig in 1814 when the Royal Navy took over the Provincial Marine, and renamed Netley, Admiralty policy being not to name vessels after living people, and Niagara in 1838, at which time she served as a base ship. She was broken up in 1843.

It is not yet known who the George Kipling also on the muster roll was (he was probably not a close relation of David however) nor the Ross (?) Kipling on the Canadian muster roll. David later settled at Sodus Ridge, NY (on the south shore of Lake Ontario). He and Elizabeth Mary (Betsey) Thorne/Thern are recorded as having a child Sarah baptised at Niagara Falls in 1825. He most probably ended his period of service in Canada and chose to remain in North America.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT. — On Monday last a very painful and dangerous accident befel Jacob Kipling, servant to Mr. W. Sleddall, Raw Head. He had been breaking a young horse, and having called at the Cock and Dolphin, Kendal, and taken a glass or two, he very imprudently on coming out to mount slapped the animal smartly on the hind quarters, while he was himself exposed to its heels. The horse flung out and struck the poor fellow a dreadful blow on the face, breaking his jaw and lacerating his nose frightfully. He was conveyed home, and for some time his medical attendants entertained great doubts of his recovery, but we are glad to say that he is now out of danger. It appears that custom and familiarity with horses had made him very imprudently fearless when he had taken a little too much to drink, and that he has been known to lie down under a horse in its stable and place its foot between his teeth.
