

The Kiplings of Brough , Westmorland

Brough parish records start in 1559 and the first Kipling entry is of the marriage of Thomas Kipling to Elizabeth Hodgson in 1579. Children Christopher (1582), Ann (1585), Mary (1590, d 1591 but see below) and Bartholomew (1594, d 1595) are then recorded. The deaths of two Johns, sons of Thomas, are recorded in 1590 and 1592 as is the death of two twins in 1593. Thomas himself died in 1613 and his wife (“Wedow Kiplin”) in 1623. Margaret, the wife of Christopher died in 1622. In 1623 the death is recorded of Margaret Kipling, widow, and in the same year that of Margaret, daughter of Elizabeth Kipling (apparently three Margarets on separate dates in two years - confusing!).

Thomas’s will leaves his estate to his widow Elizabeth. Two witnesses were Christopher Kipling, possibly his son, and Anthonie<sup>1</sup>.

In 1588, the death of John, son of Rychard Kiplin was recorded.

In 1609, Francis (sic) Kipling, the daughter of “John Kipling of Baldersdale the younger” was baptised.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> This is likely to be John Kipling of East Lophouse (will 1652) “I give unto Michael Hodgson of Brough my grandchild the sum of five pounds when he comes to the age of four and twenty if he be living”.

unto Michael Hodgson of Brough my grandchild the sum of five pounds when he comes to the age of four and twenty if he be living.

Frances Kipling married Michael Hodgson of Brough in 1629 at Romalldkirk.

In 1618, the marriage of Mary Kipling to John Raine was recorded and in 1620 that of Thomas Kipling to Elisabeth Aplbee. Were these also children of Thomas?

In 1620, the will below mentions a John Kipling, who is likely to be John of Egglestone (d 1640) as it refers to Tobias Ewbank, who is also named as a debtor to John Kipling in his inventory (as noted in the 1659 case – see below).

In 1622, the baptism was recorded of "Isabell, daughter of John Kipling of Baldersdale, bast: of the which Lionell Kipling his son and Arthur Steadman and Thomas Salkend .... give surtie...".<sup>3</sup>

An Anthonie Kipling married Catherine Aeskill in 1624. A Catherine Kipling d in 1639 and a Catteran Kiplin died in 1659. The Anthony who married Catherine was probably the witness to Thomas's will.

Anthony, the son of John Kipling of Egglestone and Baldersdale (see 'The Kiplings of Middleton'), had children baptised John (1637), Ann (1639) and Phillis (1641).

In 1640, John and his son Anthony ("yeoman of Baldersdale") are named in a court case concerning property in Brough allegedly belonging to one Thomas Waistell [C2/ChasI/W54/2].

Further court cases in 1655 and 1659 involve Anthony's brothers and, in one, his daughters.

C 10/47/99 : 1659: Robert Lambert and Anne his wife and Phyllis Kiplin v Charles Kiplin and Toby Kiplin: personal estate of John Kiplin, deceased, Westmoreland. Answer

The latter case names Anthony's widow as Jane. She may have married Edward Jackson at Brough in 1649.

James Kipling (prob b1596, Romaldekirk) married Ann Waystell in 1629. She died 1631. This James, or another, married Ann Baxter in 1657. In 1670, Ja. Kipling is reported as paying hearth tax at Stainmore Dale. He died in 1674.

In his will, James makes no mention children but leave legacies to, amongst others, nephews Henry Kipling of Baldersdale (£5) and Francis Kipling (£3), cousin William Kipling of Bowes (5s), Leonard Kipling of Bowes (5s) and Anthony Kipling of Bowes (4s). The residue is left to his wife [Annas/Agnes]. His net estate was over £24.

Ann Kipling married John Wardell in 1674; she was presumably James' widow. No Kiplings are recorded as paying hearth tax in 1674 (although John Wardell is).

In 1685 and 1687 the baptisms of sons Thomas and [Richard D&VM] to Richard Kipling were noted. Is this Richard the son (b 1658) of Thomas of KS, who had a daughter Eliz die at Soulby in 1687 and who also died at Nateby in 1710?

<sup>3</sup> This is likely to be John Kipling of Newhouses, the father of the above, who would have been 79 or 80 at the time, which probably explains why his son Lionel was one of the sureties to the parish.

In 1739, Lancelott Kipling of Brough married Margaret Hayton (see “The Kiplings of Kirkby Stephen”).

Later in the 18th century, a John Kipling is noted as living at Brough. He was the son (b1711) of James and Isabell (nee Jackson) Kipling of Hunderthwaite. He had married Mary Hobson at Bowes in 1734 and daughter Mary (1735) and Elizabeth (1743) were baptised at Romaldkirk. Mary may have married William Iston at Romaldkirk in 1761. By 1776, the family had moved to Brough and John sold his property at Hunderthwaite.

In 1782, Mary Kipling, “the wife of John Kipling of Brough Sowerby” died and in 1795, John Kipling, “husbandman”, of the same place died (“age approx 86”).

A photograph of a handwritten document, likely a will, written in cursive on aged paper. The text is written in dark ink and is slightly tilted. The document is a last will and testament of John Kipling, a yeoman from Brough Towerby in Westmoreland. It details bequests to his two daughters: Mary Iston and Elizabeth Kipling. Mary Iston receives the sum of one pound one shilling, while Elizabeth Kipling receives the remainder of the estate, including stock, crop, household furniture, and all other goods and chattels.

In his will, John leaves all his estate to his daughter Elizabeth Kipling, with the exception of a guinea to daughter Mary Iston (on whom he had most probably made a settlement on her marriage).
